Michael Lewis, CBE, CEO of Uniper, said, "This agreement with AM Green Ammonia is a key building block in our strategy to provide our customers with reliable access to renewable and low carbon molecules at scale. Green ammonia stands out as one of the most promising solutions to decarbonise CO<sub>2</sub>-intensive production of chemicals, fertilizers and, through green hydrogen, also in refining. Importantly, it offers among the lowest CO<sub>2</sub> avoidance costs compared to other renewable and low carbon molecules – thanks to its mature production process and the absence of carbon feedstock requirements. We are proud to help establish one of the first large-scale supply corridors between India and Europe.

“What distinguishes manufacturing leadership in India today is execution at scale,” added Rajeev Purohit, General Manager, India and Head of Engineering at QAD | Redzone. Purohit spoke on recognizing the Champions of Change that are moving fast, modernizing with discipline, and delivering results without slowing the business. These groups set the benchmark for how transformation gets done—practically, pragmatically, and at pace, he said on 26 Dec in Mumbai.
